November 1 - 12

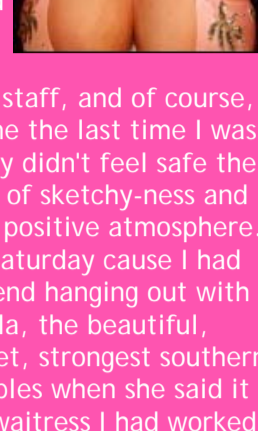

I enjoyed some time at home the beginning of November. It was sooooo nice. I didn't do anything major. I had an eye appointment, a facial, chiropractor and massage (so soothing!) along with some friend-time which is so much fun. I got a great start on my holiday shopping, and managed to put up my Christmas tree although my giant boobs kept squishing the branches.) It was a nice laid back time at home, which I wish I had more of. But I LOVVVVVVE traveling so much it's hard to find the right balance some times. I also was able to get to the gym, but went swimming instead because all the treadmills were full. My breast stroke always makes a big splash, but it's the backstroke that normally draws a few extra looks. I always wear a one piece otherwise my bikini tops always pop loose:) Surprisingly nobody really bothers me in the pool just lots of double takes when I get out:)

November 13 - 17

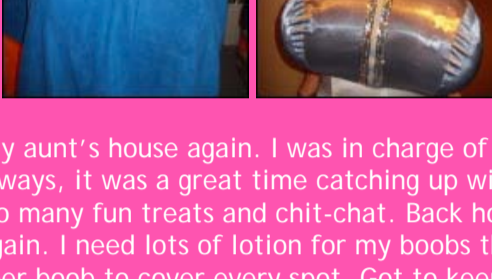

What an amazing time I had in Hickory, NC at The Playhouse! I had been here a couple of years prior, and it was a little sketchy at that time, and I wasn't too excited when I heard they wanted to rebook. But then, I was told they were under new management, turned things around and got rid of all but a couple of the previous employees, even the dancers. I wasn't entirely convinced? until I got there. The club had an entirely new staff, and the club had been redone. The first night the weather was awful, but my fans still made it in. I just love them! I also had the opportunity to hang out with the whole staff, and of course, all the girls. I even had heard from people who had come out to see me the last time I was at the club, but said they wouldn't come out there again, because they didn't feel safe the last time. I let them know things were totally different, with no signs of sketchy-ness and tried to reward everybody with an extra hug. The club had a very fun, positive atmosphere. I ended up staying until close and even came in early on Friday and Saturday cause I had such a great time. I told the manager, I felt I had spent a great weekend hanging out with my girlfriends. The very first night, I met two of my favorites, Carla, the beautiful, HILARIOUS bartender, and Kiiiiiiiim. I loved Kim, she had the most sweet, strongest southern accent. I told her it was beautiful, how her name Kim became 3 syllables when she said it with that drawl. She was a total sweetheart. I even ran into Tanya, a waitress I had worked with at a club in Florida. I know I say I like a lot of clubs and had fun. But this was definitely a club I didn't want to leave at the end of the weekend! The time flew by way too swiftly! Can't wait to go back!!!

November 18 - 30

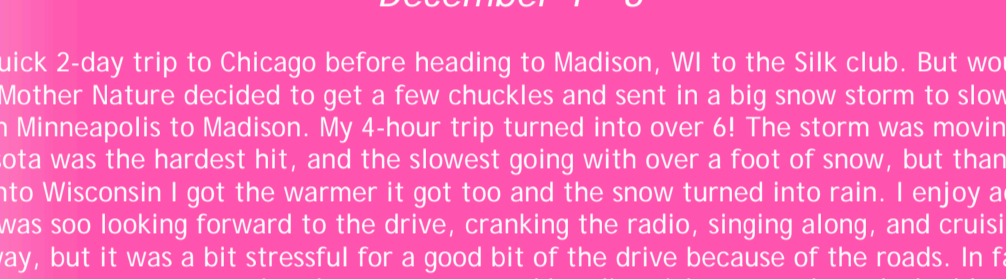

I had a quick 3-day trip to Houston, but besides that I had a lot of shoots and holiday prep time at home. Oh, and I learned a new fun word on twitter when somebody said I had nice 'juggage.' Love it!

I spent Thanksgiving at my aunt's house again. I was in charge of appetizers, so nothing too crazy or stressful. Like always, it was a great time catching up with family and enjoying the great bounty of food. So many fun treats and chit-chat. Back home the reality of winter weather really sunk in again. I need lots of lotion for my boobs this time of year. It usually takes 10-12 squirts per boob to cover every spot. Got to keep them moisturized!!!

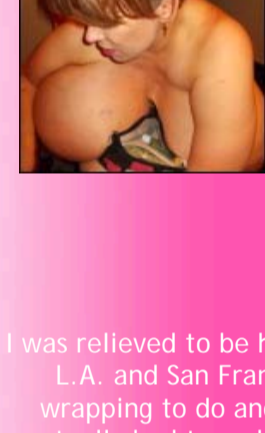

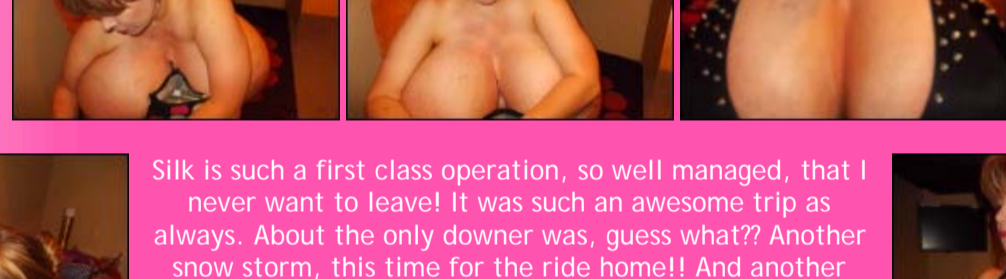

The day after Thanksgiving I went with some friends to the Mall of America for some shopping and hang-out time. Of course, we stopped at Hooters and had some wings. I even ran into a few fans :)

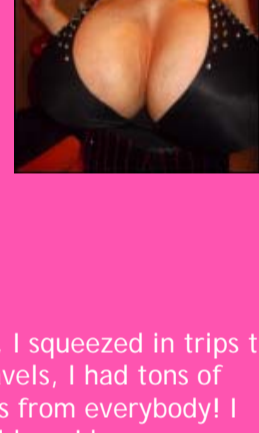

December 1 - 8

I had a quick 2-day trip to Chicago before heading to Madison, WI to the Silk club. But wouldn't you know it, Mother Nature decided to get a few chuckles and sent in a big snow storm to slow down my drive from Minneapolis to Madison. My 4-hour trip turned into over 6! The storm was moving with me, so Minnesota was the hardest hit, and the slowest going with over a foot of snow, but thankfully, the further into Wisconsin I got the warmer it got too and the snow turned into rain. I enjoy actual road trips, and was soo looking forward to the drive, cranking the radio, singing along, and cruising as it was all highway, but it was a bit stressful for a good bit of the drive because of the roads. In fact at one point, there were two cars going the wrong way and heading right at me through the blowing snow. Luckily it was 2 lanes in each direction. Way too close for comfort though! I was relieved when I got in that evening, and exhausted! I got settled into my hotel and went right to bed. The following day I had to do the WJJO radio show again! I've done them before, with Biatch, Johnny, and Greg. They are so hysterical and fun! Of course, it was early in the morning, and they're all drinking beer! (only in Wisconsin!) I stuck with my Starbucks, but had a great time. They loved how I set my boobs on the table while I was sitting there on the air, so they decided to do a tape outline of my breasts on the table, to make future guests guess what the outline is of. Should be pretty funny! They also asked if I'd participate in their Christmas card this year. Of course I'm not going to say no! So we all laid down, and put some gift wrapping bows on ourselves. Obviously my bows were on my tits:) We took lots of photos, and they were so fun!

The club was great, as always! It was good to see everyone again. They have a nice, large stage to perform so that's extra neat. The challenging part is that it has 3 levels, so I have to keep watching my feet, so I don't tip over. It was such a fabulous time as they always have huge crowds! Saturday night the gang from the radio show came out for the 'Toys for Tots' promotion. It was cool to see them outside of work as they cut loose a little and really had some fun! And according to the radio station and club's final count the event was record setting as it SMASHED the previous record with everybody bringing in a toy before seeing my ta-tas. So awesome!!! It was such an honor to help promote the event! And the night itself was so much fun! Obviously the radio crew works very early mornings, so I wasn't sure if they'd stay too late. They did manage to catch my first show and I got them good!!! Johnny and Biatch both got booby bopped real good, and I even got Biatch up on stage with me! We had soooo much fun!!!

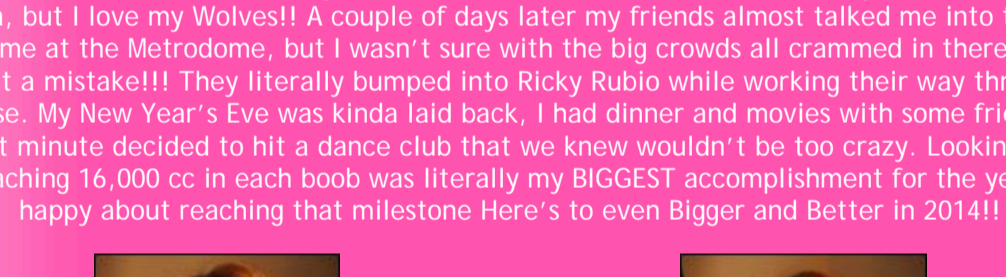

Silk is such a first class operation, so well managed, that I never want to leave! It was such an awesome trip as always. About the only downer was, guess what? Another snow storm, this time for the ride home! And another incredibly long drive, as this time, it snowed non-stop the entire way! But I didn't mind with so many great memories from Madison. Hope to get back there this summer!

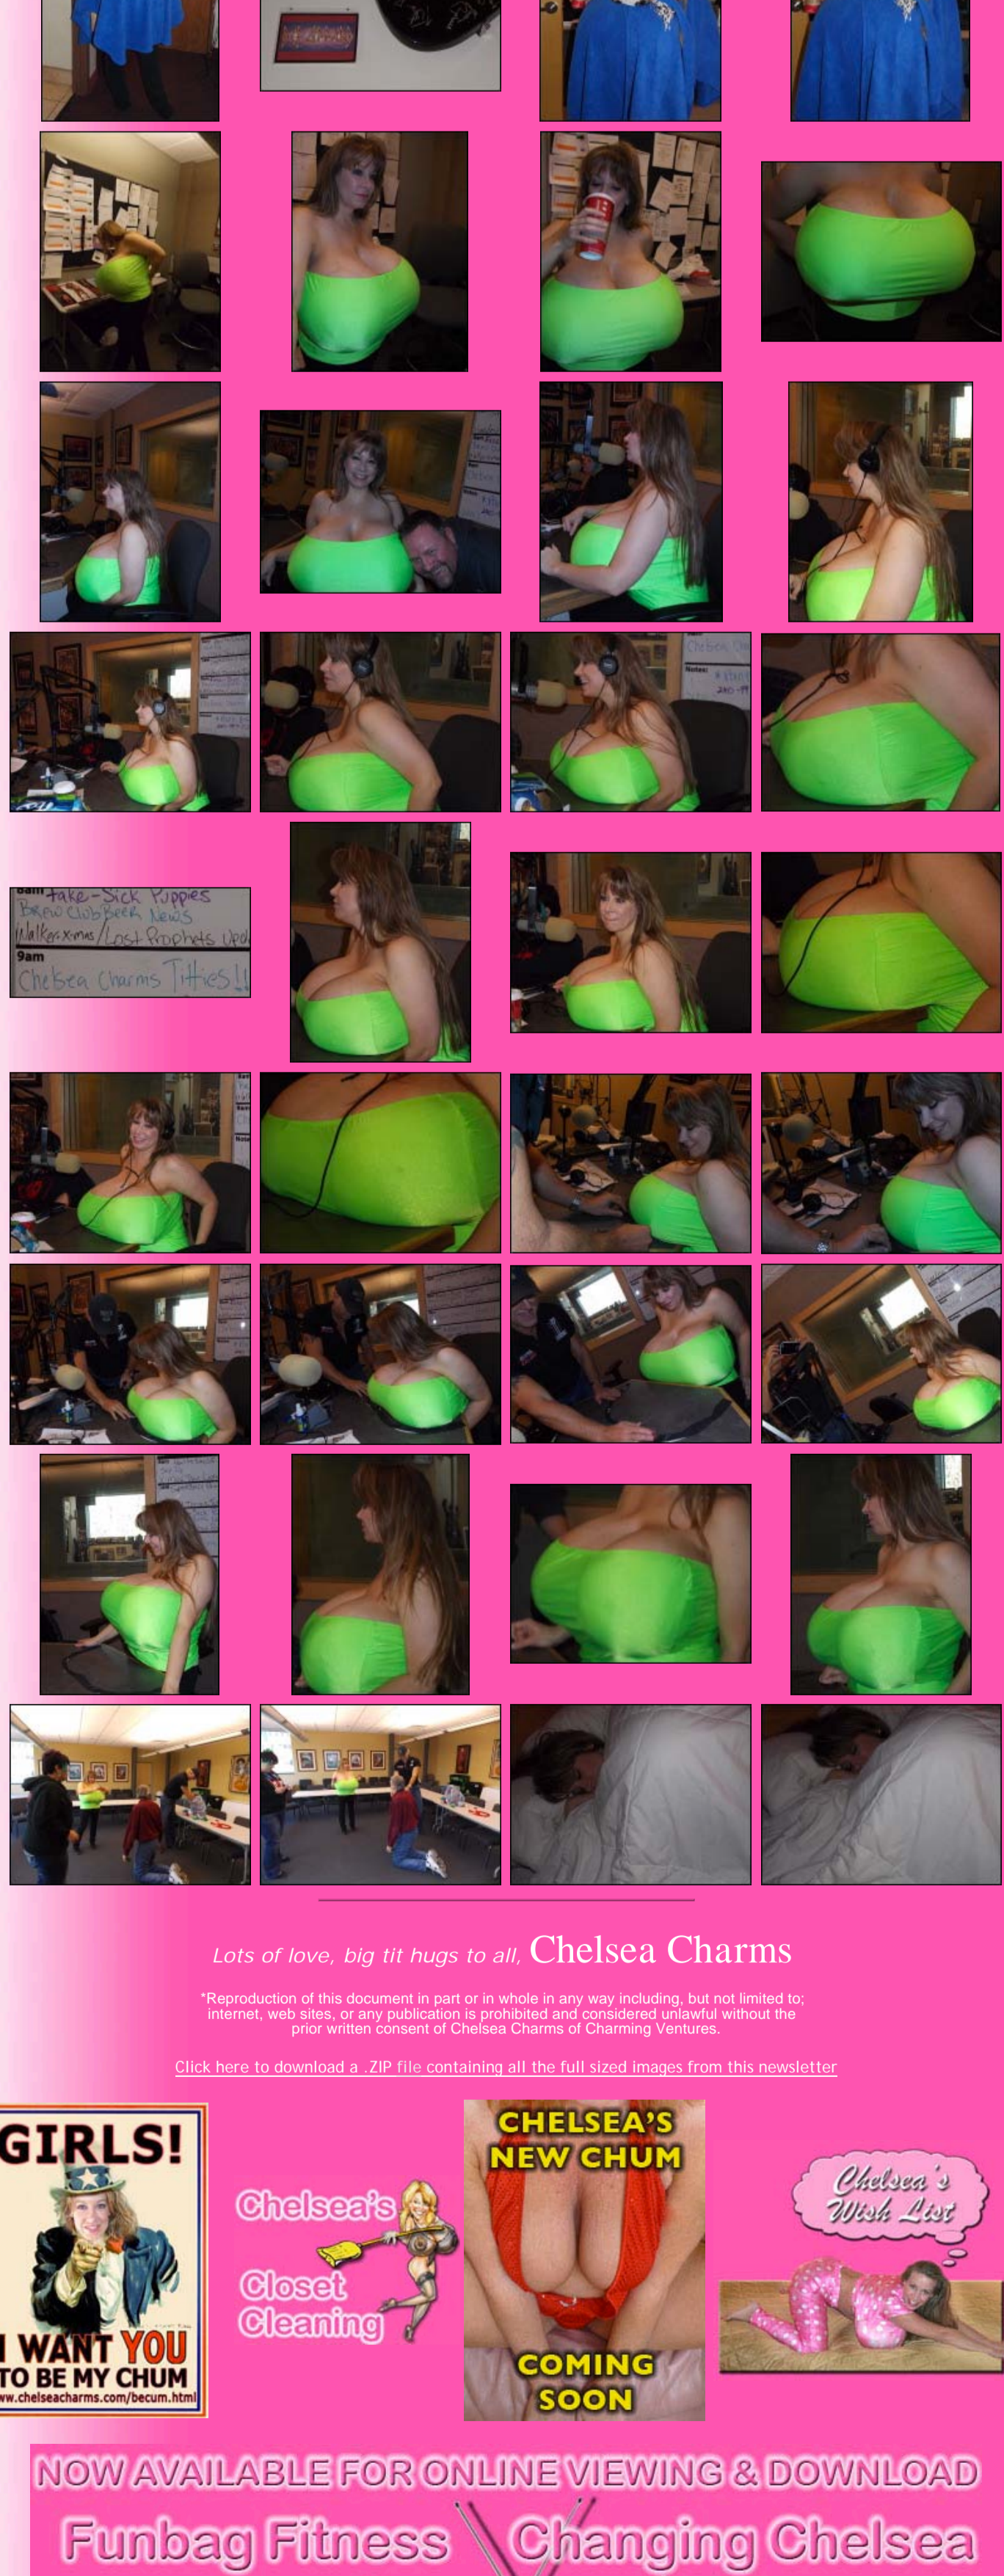

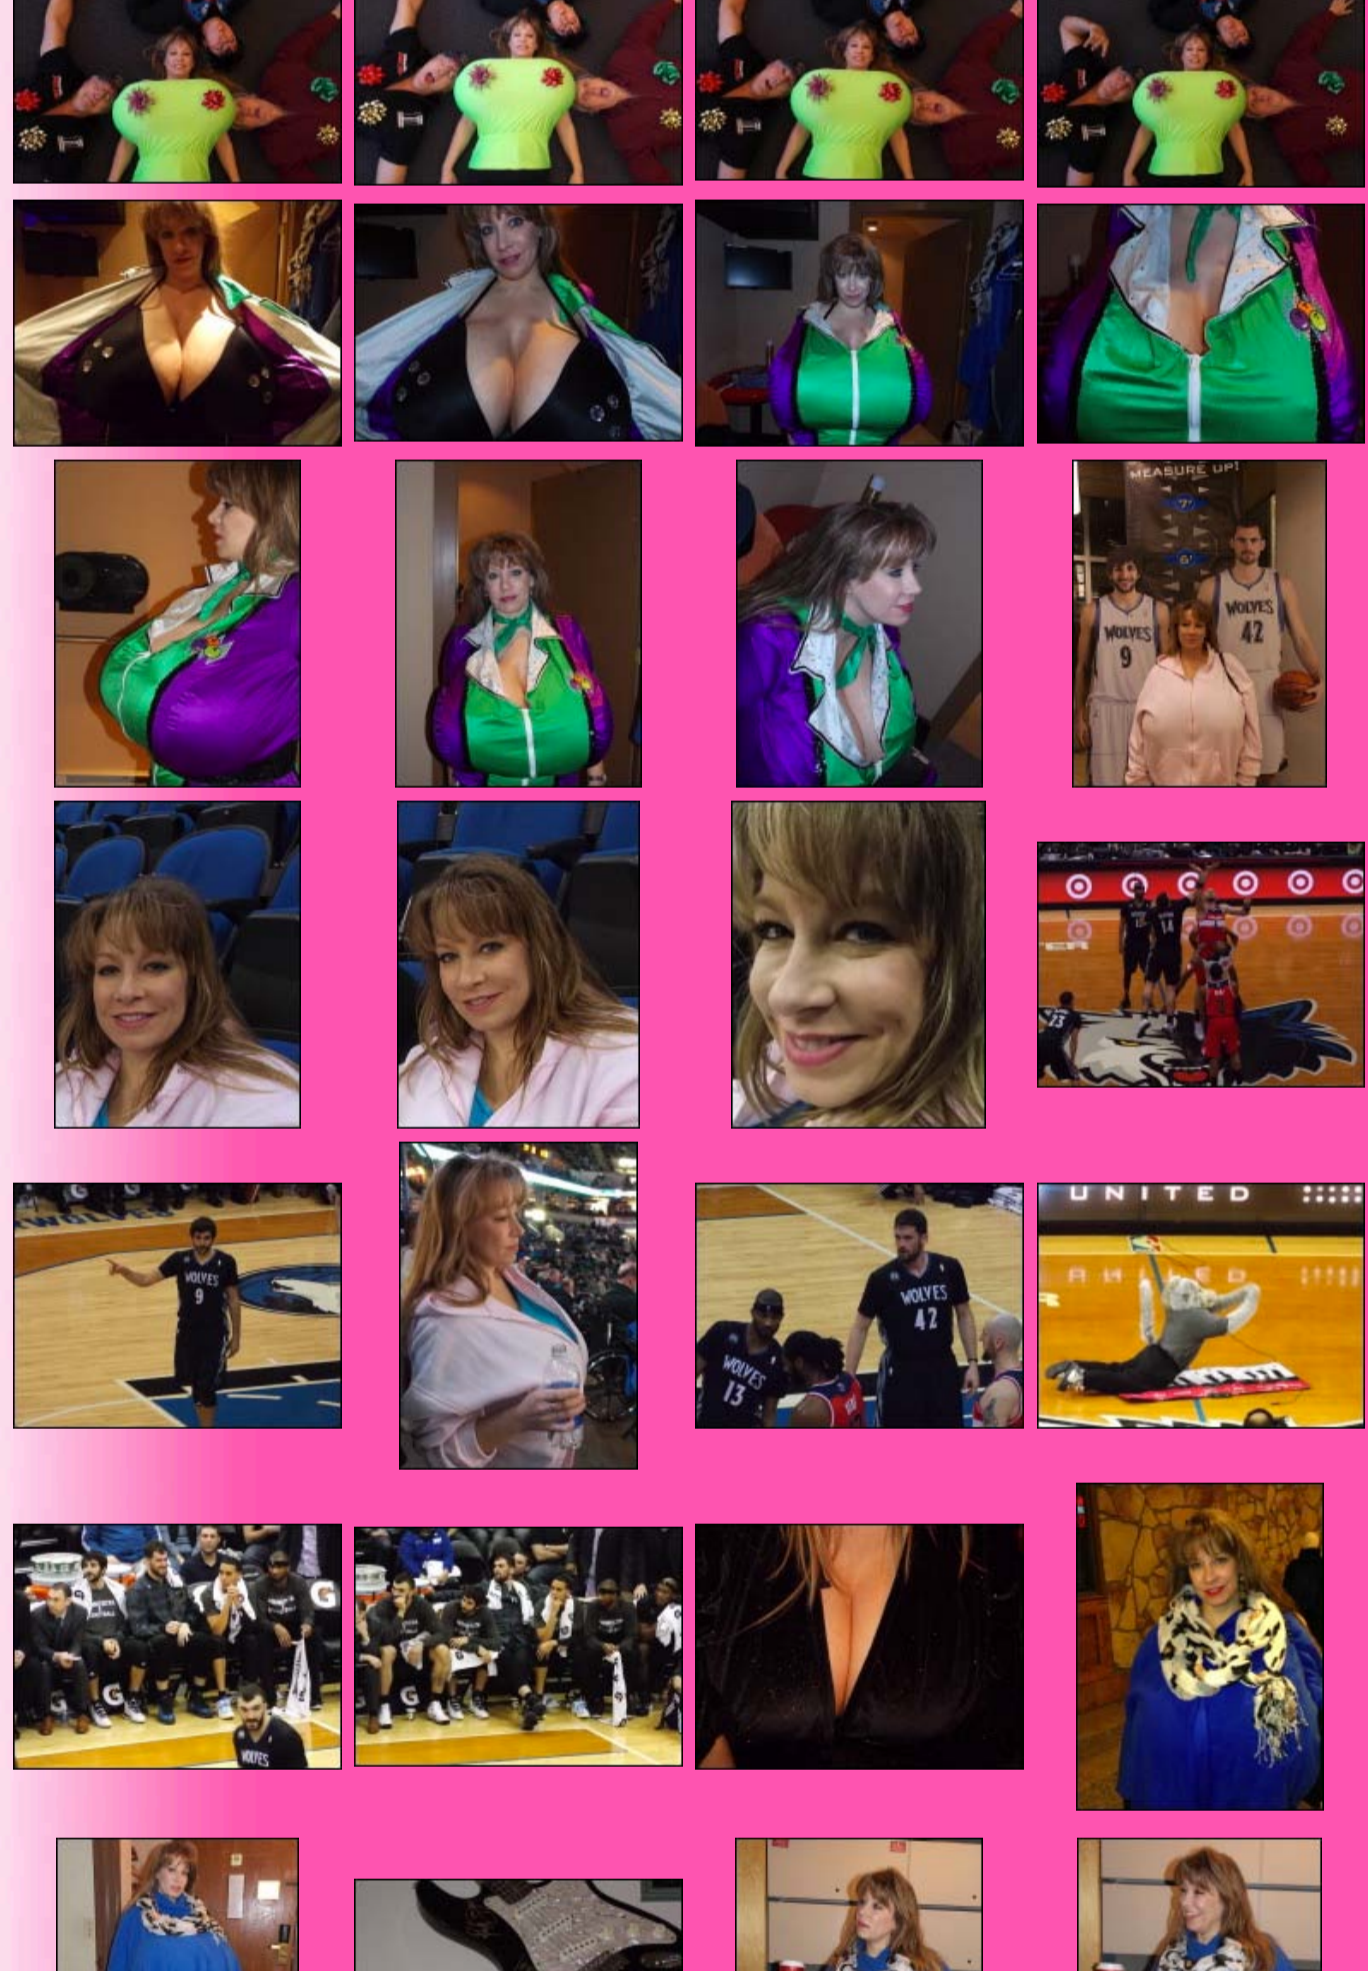

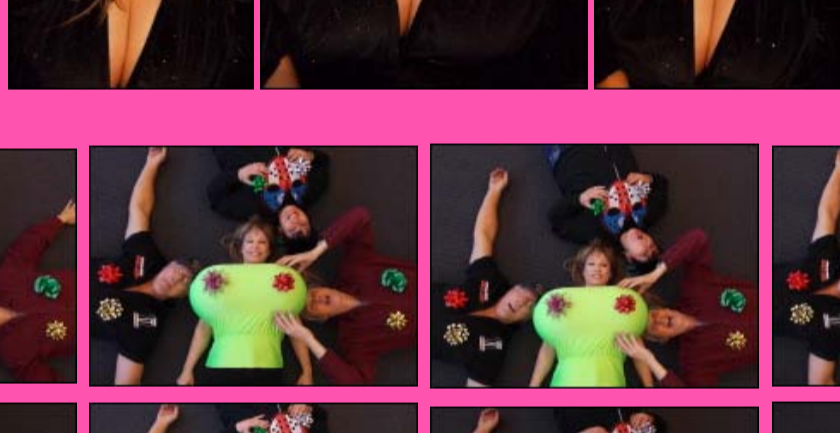

December 9 - 31

I was relieved to be home safe after that 8-hour drive, but didn't stay home long, I squeezed in trips to L.A. and San Francisco before my holiday break. Once I got home from my travels, I had tons of wrapping to do and last minute holiday things, not to mention car loads of gifts from everybody! I actually had to make FOUR trips to the post office there were so many! They told me I have my own spot in the back where they piled all my gifts. THANK YOU to everybody! So incredibly generous are all of you! I'm extremely grateful and appreciative!

I had a super fun several days with family celebrating the holidays and even managed to get out and catch a Minnesota Timberwolves game. I even took a bunch of photos. Usually I'm in front of the camera, but I love my Wolves!! A couple of days later my friends almost talked me into the final Vikings game at the Metrodome, but I wasn't sure with the big crowds all crammed in there so I didn't go. What a mistake!!! They literally bumped into Ricky Rubio while working their way through the concourse. My New Year's Eve was kinda laid back. I had dinner and movies with some friends, and then last minute decided to hit a dance club that we knew wouldn't be too crazy. Looking back at 2013, reaching 16,000 cc in each boob was literally my BIGGEST accomplishment for the year. I'm so happy about reaching that milestone Here's to even Bigger and Better in 2014!!!

Lots of love, big tit hugs to all, Chelsea Charms
